BELLE GLADE MAYOR WILLIAM GREAR FRAMES NEW AREA
...of city marina which will be constructed by the FCD to add to present facility

Marina pact okayed

Plans to begin construction of an 8-acre park and camping area on the site of the Belle Glade Marina received approval Friday from the South and Central Florida Flood Control District board of directors.

The $25-million project was approved last week by the Belle Glade City Commission and sent on to the FCD for its approval.

Sexuality program is planned

A program in responsible human sexuality will be held April 21 at Glades Day School with the Rev. John D. Riley, Executive Director of Palm Beach County Planned Parenthood, as the local medical affiliate.

Rev. Riley has been with Planned Parenthood since 1959, first as a volunteer counselor in the San Francisco Bay Area, and then as director of the local medical affiliate.

With the increase in the rare venereal disease and problems presented by the increase in the population of the county, Rev. Riley has stated in interviews the importance of good education and counseling for adults, especially for young people.

Following the classes at the Day School, Rev. Riley will be the guest of the young people in a parish meeting that evening in St. John's Episcopal Church in Belle Glade.

The next step is for the two boards to get together to sign the pact.

The pact is the result of a proposal the FCD made in August 1974. The city and FCD officials have been holding out the details of the agreement for the past several months.

The project calls for raising the level of the facility to keep it above water at the level of Lake Okeechobee, which is 17.5 feet above sea level plus almost doubling the size of the city marina while adding more camping area and recreation facilities.

In return, the city agrees to turn over title to the land it owns on the site and lease it from the FCD for a dozen years.

Work is scheduled to begin on the project this year and will take three to four years to complete. The level of the lake is scheduled to be raised in 1977.

The first phase of construction will be new marina and camping area to be used by the public during the period of raising the original park site.

The camp will feature a multiple boat launching ramp with ample parking for campers. All of the camp sites will have water frontage. This will be accomplished by building roads along finger-like camping area extending into Lake Okeechobee.

Mayor William Grear said Tuesday one of the final details which was causing a delay was that the city demanded a clause in the agreement which provided that if the FCD fails to perform as anticipated in the contract, the land would revert to the city.

Solons approve jury districting bill

Jury trials in the Glades came a step closer Tuesday morning when a bill allowing separate jury districts within the county was unanimously passed from a House of Representatives Judiciary Committee sub-committee.

The bill, co-sponsored by Rep. Tom Adams and Rep. Bill James, is a result of a request made by Palm Beach Circuit Court Judge Don T. Adams, who presides over the Palm Beach County Office of the court.

Lewis reported the bill received no opposition from members of the Court System and Miscellaneous

Sub Committee when it came up Tuesday and a committee staff member said he foreseen no problem when the bill goes before the full committee.

The bill would allow a pool of potential jury members to be formed as a separate district in the Glades, making it unnecessary for local residents to go to West Palm Beach to serve as jurors.

Since the trials would be held in the Glades Office Building, the bill would also cut costs in other areas, such as transportation for witnesses, including law enforcement officers, and would eliminate the inconvenience of having to travel all the way to the coast.

Judge Adams forced the issue, indicating law enforcement officers would be held in the Glades to a defendant represented by Belle Glade attorney Thomas Montgomery.

Adams said he had made the decision to grant the jury trial here in September to force the issue but had remarked at the time he would, "pull in our horns" if the reservations expressed by calling him or the club.

The bill will be open to all Elks and invited guests.

Berryhill said any members wishing tickets can make reservations by calling him or the club.

Adams has been on record for some time his objective is to provide full court service in the Glades and the type of his service has steadily grown since he was appointed to the bench by Gov. Reubin Askew.

"I'm really glad it worked out this way," Adams commented, when told about the sub-committee's action on Wednesday morning. "I think much rather the majority come from the legislature."

He said he believes there have been too many instances over the past several years of judges making laws and this practice is "anathema" to him.

"There has been some opposition from people on the coast to holding jury trials here," Adams said. "On the grounds that if we have them, people in the south and north parts of the county will want their own juries."

"But I say, 'so what.' If the people in the southern parts of the county want and want their own jury trials," he said, "let 'em have 'em."

Happy birthday

Birthday greetings to the nation on its 200th are being made by the South Bay Bicentennial Committee on Herbert Hoover Drive just north of the city limits on US27. The message, made up of eight-foot letters, will also include the flags of the 13 original states and the name of South Bay across the bottom in 200 foot lines. The message was prepared by Collins Sign Co. Collins also began the erection, being carried on above by Robert Crawford, Steve McKinley and Les Ulund of Chrichtfield Electric Co.

South Bay Commission names self

SOUTH BAY-City Commissioners made plans to comprehensively plan their city to receive more money over the next two years and decided to spend some more money on police during the next five years.

In the first move, the commissioners accepted a recommendation by Group Seven representative Blane Carnal to notify the proper officials the city will be its own planning agency in drawing up a comprehensive plan required by law to be completed by 1979.

Carnal also told the commissioners the city will receive in the near future $14,500 in Community Grant Program to pay for capital improvements.

The funds were approved some time ago and Carnal said the city would already have received them but they are being held up because of disagreements on how they are to be used.

He said the city may also receive another $139,000 for the same program next year, although he said that figure is subject to change.

"This is a five-year program," Carnal went on, "but what we do in the first six months is important if the city decides to start certain programs with the funds, they won't be able to come back later and say they want to drop the programs."

In other action, the commission agreed to a ten per cent raise for the city's three highest ranking police

No chickenfeed college for him

It's only chicken feed but it could buy college education this week for a Glades Central senior, who says he won't accept it even if it is a full scholarship.

Pat Kirchman thought up the idea last year about feeding chickens water hyacinths and he took the idea to the Florida State Science Fair in Panama City.

But Kirchman, son of Mr. and Mrs. August Kirchman of 1932 S.E. Ave. K Place, said he has already been accepted by a school which recognizes no scholarships and that's where he intends to matriculate even if it is forced to give up one of 20 four-year scholarships.

Kirchman said the project started when he learned water hyacinths contain more nutrition than alfalfa, a common source of feed for livestock, and it might form an additive which would have the double advantage of being plentiful and ridging the state's waterways of an unwanted weed.

"The objective was to see if water hyacinths could be used as a food," Kirchman said, and "I concluded that chickens fed with 10 to 30 per cent hyacinth to 70 to 90 per cent regular chicken feed did better than chickens eating just chicken feed."

He said his biggest problem was in gathering and chopping the water plants because 40 man-hours were used to gather enough to act as a food substitute for 14 chicks over a month's time.

"By the time you chop up the roots," Kirchman said, "you've already lost about 60 per cent of the plant. We had to gather about four 10-gallon plastic trash bags full of hyacinths to get a liter of hyacinth flour."

He said he and Brad Pollit, a friend, worked about two hours a day gathering the water plants over the month's time the experiment was carried out.

Once the hyacinths were gathered, the two would chop them into smaller pieces and process them through a kitchen blender, which yielded something which they said looked like chopped spinach.

They would then dry the "spinach" slowly, then re-grind it in the blender until it became a dry flour. Pollit said they began using breathing filters after he became allergic to the flour.

Kirchman said the chicks were divided into seven groups with one pair of control chicks being fed only chicken feed, while the other chicks were fed with 10, 20, 30, 40, 50 and 60 per cent water hyacinth flour mixed in with their feed.

"Up to 30 per cent," he said, "the chicks did better than the control group. At about 40 per cent, they did about the same and then they fell off

Pot Likker

by R-D Santee

From sources totally unknown to myself, word has gotten out that I am a very astute political observer and tactician.

Since this news has been out I have been deluged by letters from the various and sundry aspirants for our office.

Of course they requested that I not publish their requests for advice which I have no intention of doing. I do feel that, with postal rates as they are, and I, as a respecter of fiscal moderation, shall publish my answers and the candidates may glean their individual solutions from the text of this column. So let us begin.

To J. C. . . Your remark on "ethnic purity" will not kill you at the polls. Ignore it. You have done well so far not to really come to terms with anything of substance. To try to explain your way out of this one may open such a can of worms that you could well end up in November fishing with them instead of planting peanuts in the East Garden.

To S. U. - Don't let the "ethnic purity" statement die. The worst thing you could do is let your opponent ignore it. Force him to explain it time and time again. Then make him explain his explanations. You may make point of him but you have about as much chance of winning the nomination as Custer had of becoming sitting Bull's blood brother.

To R. R. - What in mischief do you want with the Presidency anyhow? You have proven yourself already as a second-rate actor. And if I am not mistaken, the Presidency must be it is an actor. I agree that the government is too big. But do you want to cut personnel for economic reasons or to share the spotlight with four players? I would roll up my saddlebags and ride into the nearest sunset. A good publicity shot during your announcement could be of you kissing your horse. Bussing babies isn't vague anymore.

To G. W. - I like you very much.

But I also like other things such as spaghetti, bagels and chitlins. And I think I much prefer the latter. On the other hand, you're not fattening — and wouldn't be as a President either. Perhaps you could hitch your chariot to R. R.'s horse and follow him into the nearest sunset again.

To H. H. - Here we go again. You wonder if you should announce. Well? Haven't you already? If memory serves me correctly you haven't stopped running since the last time you lost. No. I don't think plastic surgery ever shows an increase of false teeth either. You stand an excellent chance of playing "bird". That is, like a buzzard you can wait for the others to kill each other off then prey over their carcasses but you know the viewpoint John Q. Public has of the buzzard. Forget it.

Considering your age, your teeth, your hair, your body tone and your voice, you're a seven-time loser.

To G. F. - Why in thunder are you asking me for advice? I wrote you just after Spiro expired and advised you to resign or you would ultimately be unable to "cook your own breakfast". Yes, I have indeed advised a couple of us of those other masses of political humanity to remain President (you used the word become). Forget about foreign policy and sent that map back to the Halls of Synt. If R. R. and G. W. happen to be going "that way" suggest to "Super whatever" that he ride with R. R. or sit on W.'s lap.

To H. K. - No you can't be President. You're right also in that you can't be King either. But don't let the man push you around. I figure within the year you will have sold the entire country to the Arabs and they'll boot you out. A small price for us to pay, right? And that the transaction would accomplish.

To Q. C. - Who would be your king? I've never heard of you. Considering everything else, I'd like to meet you. Before you move into the White House.

Go ag

So who says college graduates are having a tough time getting jobs? A news release we received while week confirmed just what we suspected all along. It all depends on what we graduate has studied.

With the job market not being an overwhelming need for graduates with degrees in political science, social engineering, basket weaving & musical therapy, degree holders in agriculture are being snapped up as soon as they doff their caps and gowns.

The University of Florida's Institute of Food and Agricultural Sciences, who recently completed a year-long study, found there's a waiting list for graduate degree programs.

The study indicates that only 2.6 per cent of graduates don't have jobs waiting for them, masters degrees enjoyed 100 per cent placement and only one person, receiving a doctorate's degree left the college unemployed.

Students in the College of Arts and Sciences may still derisively refer to the College of Agriculture as the "Cow College" and hold to the belief their students are somehow inferior but they and their parents apparently still are hooked on the habit of eating.

And as long as eating is a vice of the people, somebody's going to be needed to figure out how to supply the food.

Clipped

We didn't realize we were going to kick over a hornet's nest when we wrote the editorial last week on the city mowing grass on land belonging to private citizens. We're glad we did.

Any number of people have commented since last week's edition and some points we didn't even think of were raised.

There was, for instance, the case of the local lady who said she has unsuccessfully attempted to get the city to maintain a drainage easement behind her home.

There was the comment, echoed in a letter found elsewhere on this page, that the city might just be liable for any damage suffered because city employees and equipment are operating on private property.

And from the other direction, there was the thought that since vacant lot owners pay taxes and receive no police or fire protection, they should get some service for their money.

Anyone could argue either way about the city's responsibility to care for its responsibilities but it's a natural fact there is a responsibility here that for caring for vacant lots.

And we'll leave the liability of the city in this type of case up to the attorneys.

But if a person is holding on to a vacant lot, in or out of the city limits, they can only be kept in as an investment and should the taxpayers as a whole be billed for maintaining an investment?

And if the city's property management could be involved and complicated in enforcing the ordinance covering the requirement that private landowners keep up their own property but it is on the books and therefore a city policy.

And the fact remains no one has ever even attempted to enforce the law. All we have to say is the ordinance should either be repealed or enforced.

And we think it ought to be enforced.

But for those who disagree with us and want to get in on the city's program, we decided to print the coupon at the left. This should expedite requests from citizens now being left out.

CRACKER CRUMBS

BY DEAN JONES

You gotta say one thing for the old-timers (old-timers in this case meaning really old-timers). When those old fellers carved a god out of clay, stone, wood or what have you, at least gave it a face.

Not so the modern god-makers. There's a god without a face, breathed life into it and called it Guv'mint.

Seems to me I reckymember hearing that some of the old gods, like Baal, let the people know, according to the priests of the time, that they were a bit larger than life by requiring a sacrifice, in the form of a sheep, a cow and sometimes a nice young virgin.

Well, every time the sacrifice came in the form of a bunch of matches, something I've been known to offer up to myself for Sunday dinner but I call it a roast.

That's where another difference shows up between Guv'mint and Baal. While Baal enjoyed a roaring fire in his lap to where he'd roast matches now and then, Guv'mint just said he wants tighter controls to put out matches.

Actually, it was one of the cults of priests who serve Guv'mint who passed the word along to us poor mortals about the gofer match controls.

The priesthood calls itself the CPC of the Consumer Product Safety Commission.

Ain't that a hoot? And it's not the only cult of priests serving a whole raft of gods but nowadays we have a whole raft of priesthoods, all offering to serve as go-betweens between us and Guv'mint, who is apparently just one god.

Even now and then, I wonder which of the priests (usually called politicians or bureaucrats) are getting ungarbled messages across between us and Guv'mint. Matter of fact, I sometimes don't think any of 'em are. Maybe it's a conspiracy against the people.

But that's all beside the point. If we believe the priests, Guv'mint has definitely made the statement he doesn't want his kiddies hurt by gofer matches.

The priests said Guv'mint said he wants them to pass laws requiring match manufacturers to make the matchbooks so children and enraged adults can't open them and so they lock when they're closed up again.

Guv'mint also said he wants the matches designed so they burn for only 15 seconds and for no more than 15 seconds.

From my experience with gofers, though, that's sort of like a wasted decree. Most of 'em don't light in the first place and when you can get one to burn, it's a miracle. And if it's 15 seconds, you've got a bona fide miracle on your hand.

The way I always figured it, any time you can get one of those mule-headed matches to burn anywhere near as long as what may become the minimum, that's certifiable sign Guv'mint must be ready for a burn offering.

Only thing wrong, is that even then, the burnt offerings don't always come off. But I guess that's because Guv'mint has gotten tired of over-dones virgins anyway and has decided to do away with the practice in favor of rare offerings.

Either that or he's going to be satisfied with taxes from now on.

Letters to the editor

Editor.

First of all let me commend Commissioners Altman and Kirk for trying to protect the average citizen.

Once again they tried to do what is nonsensical. Doubt if this would happen anywhere else. But where everyone seems to be looking for a quick buck and the rich get richer even if it's at their expense.

In fact cites an article such as yours about the free grain. Farmers would have brought a storm of protest. The Commissioners phones would be ringing and there would be a flood of letters to the editor condemning this.

However I feel safe in betting that this won't happen here. Apparently one half of the population benefits from the current system and the other half, who don't give a damn or they think they can't fight city hall.

Commissioner Harris says he will be writing the char-owners for the mowing and doesn't know how to go about it, perhaps if you will publish the number of acres the city has that may be required for this upkeep, added on the cost of the machines and maybe some mathematician can come up with a formula. Strange that he never seems to have any trouble deciding how much to charge us for other services such as garbage service etc.

Nowhere in the write up of the meeting was there any mention of the city attorney advising the Commission of the legal aspects.

If they own private property, can't the owner of this property sue the city for any damage accident incurred?

I should like to know if the city would be liable if a child were to be hurt by one of these machines.

That possibility may seem farfetched but there are other things that could happen such as valuable crops mowed by mistake.

Yours truly,
Andrews broken by flying stones etc. Some of our representatives don't seem to care whether a matter is legal or not, just so long as they get away with it.

Thank you for looking out of these injustices to us, keep trying —

FARM FRONT

by Doyle Conner, Commissioner

Our horticulture industry is a major segment of Florida agriculture and it is continuing to expand. The demand for trees and landscape plants and shrubs increases as Florida population rises. The industry had grower sales, at $100 million, in 1975. A major problem has reared its ugly head - plant thefts.

Growers are complaining to me that they are being ripped off by tens of thousands of dollars worth of valuable plants, which the thieves are selling to unscrupulous nurseries and out-of-state buyers who apparently do not know they are buying stolen goods.

At the impetus of an Apopka nurseryman, an announcement went out last week that a nursery theft seminar would be held in Apopka on the afternoon of May 12 and the morning of May 13. Much of Florida's foliage nursery production is in the Apopka area.

The seminar is similar to the one that was set up in cooperation with the Florida Sheriff's Association and the Florida Cattlemen's Association on livestock thefts in 1974. It will bring together nurserymen, law enforcement, plant inspectors and road guard personnel from our department, a security systems spokesman and a state attorney.

FSES has job

seekers on file

The Florida State Employment Service (FSES), located on State Road 715 at 300 S.W. 1st Street has in its files applicants from the area who possess a wide variety of skills and interests. Employers now need workers, so by advertising some or all of this fertile source simply by stopping in, or by phoning their requirements to 996-3067.

As a state agency there is no charge to either the employer or applicant who avail themselves of this service.

Employers are never under obligation to hire a specific referral. The FSES simply screens its applicants and refers those it deems best qualified for the employer's perusal and final selection.

For those employers hard-pressed for funds for new positions FSES has a plan. Many recipients of AFBC (Aid to Families with Dependent Children) are good, capable workers desirous of passing from welfare grants to their own employment. In accordance with existing regulations, employers can provide these workers on the job training to their particular businesses.

The next part of all is that these employers are reimbursed for 50% of the wages they pay during such training making it a most efficient procedure.

Employers in the "Public Service" area will find 100% reimbursement of wages paid during the contract period.

COMMODITY CORNER

By Alan Rosen

Reynolds Securities, Inc. 150 Palmetto Park Rd. Boca Raton, Fla. 33431

Sugar

The market has been fluctuating uncertainly as foreign cane producers, domestic refiners, and industrial consumers have been trying to assess the implications for sugar of the policies of the recent "participation" sales of sufficient sugar to some U.S. refiners. Another "puzzle" for the trade is the extent to which high fructose corn syrup will cut into sugar's use in soft drinks and ice cream. However, dry weather in western beet producing areas, the break-down of sugar talk between the European Community and the ACP (African, Caribbean and Pacific) sugar producing countries on the price for sugar to be delivered to the United Kingdom from July 1, and renewed rumors of impending Russian purchases of sugar in the world market, all tend to provide underlying support for prices. We think that a combination of reduced "effective" supplies of cane sugar at a time of seasonally expanding demand should lead to firmer sugar future prices.

Orange Juice

A sharp price decline followed the release of the April USDA Florida orange estimate, which increased the box count to 180.3 million (including Tempe) from 177.5 million boxes the previous month. The early and midseason fruit figure was increased by 800,000 boxes, and Valencia by a whopping 2 million. The yield factor was left unchanged at 1.30. Actually, some observers believe that another box count increase in May is possible because of better fruit sizing that could result from the weather which came after April 1, the base date of the estimate. Because of the larger crop estimate, delivered-in-fresh fruit prices could retreat to a possible 50 cents per lb. of solids, which would equate to a board level of about 58.00.

In view of the probability of substantially smaller weekly movement figures, now that shipments under the recent promotion have commenced and distributors begin to work on accumulated inventories in the face of the seasonally lower consumption period, we would expect further downside market pressure.

Cattle

The USDA quarterly 23-state cattle on feed report was released too late for comment, but placements on feed in the January-March period had a number of animals on feed April 1 were expected to be higher than in the earlier. Despite a projected increase in feed beef, however, an increase in consumer demand for beef seems likely, which should absorb supplies with little difficulty. Recent strong demand from packers at steadily higher prices tends to underscore the potential development of a tight statistical fit.

Corn

Steadiness in new crop futures appears to stem from concern that the drought in the central corn belt may extend itself further into the midwest. Otherwise, weather to date has been favorable for spring seeded crops with field preparations well ahead of the usual schedule over most of the corn belt. Also, larger fertilizer supplies and lower prices this year are expected to bring heavier fertilizer application. Miller weather this past winter reduced manure gas requirements and allowed ammonium nitrate to increase their output of nitrogen fertilizer. Prices of nitrogen fertilizer in the midwest are reported to be about one-third lower than a year ago. The corn-nitrogen price ratio (lbs. of nitrogen equivalent in value to one bushel of corn) is 22 this spring, up sharply from 16 in 1975 and about the same as two years ago. This consideration along with prospects for larger corn acreage, favored by the highest corn-soybean price ratio in any of the past 10 years, are major factors influencing higher corn crop.

Rumors persist of additional sales of U.S. grain to Russia although no sales to USSR were reported this past week. U.S. commitments of corn to the USSR for 1975/76 delivery totaled 368 million bushels as of April 6. Of this quantity, 256 million bushels had already been shipped; outstanding sales include 34 million from U.S. supplies and about 78 million from optional sources. Weekly inspections of corn for export jumped sharply to 38.9 million bushels for the week ended April 1, bringing the total so far this season to 899 million bushels, which is more than in the same period last year. While U.S. will meet with increased competition from Argentina, Brazil, and South Africa during the next few months, it now appears as though the USDA export forecast of 1.5 to 1.6 billion bushels for the 1975/76 season can be easily attained.

We expect prices to remain within a narrow trading range.

Soybeans

The April 15 planting intentions report, issued today, after we went to press, was generally expected to show that farmers intend to plant fewer acres to soybeans this year than the 7% reduction from last year's acreage (to 50.9 million acres) suggested in the January USDA prospective planting report. Whether or not actual plantings will be in line with the April 15 USDA estimate would depend on the weather and other factors. Soybeans can be planted later than corn even when they compete for acreage. It is said that, as a general rule, corn yields in the main corn belt are reduced about one bushel per day for each day after May 10 that the crop is planted. If corn planting is delayed by adverse weather much beyond normal planting dates, more soybeans would probably be planted than now expected.

Our precious heritage embodied in the flag of the United States is an olive today as it was written for the ages in the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution. It stands for all of us. We, the people, have a privilege, a right, and a duty. While we may disagree as to the methods, we must all work together to keep the flag flying high. It is the symbol of our freedom and the symbol of our democracy. We must not forget that it is the symbol of preserving the greatest democratic society the world has ever known.

Our flag is a symbol, not of sentiment, but of history, the history of men and women willing to live and die for it. Surely this willingness is as still, because daily we experience more of the blessings that our forefathers gave us as Americans.

THE UNEXPECTED

What if you looked out your window and saw an elephant standing in your back yard? Would you think you'd been transported to Africa—or that the zoo had lost a boarder?

Situations just as bizarre and unexpected can happen anywhere, anytime, to anyone. When they happen to you, are you able to cope with them?

Merely attending church isn't going to solve all your problems. But it will help build a base that teaches you how to take the unexpected in stride. And life, when you get down to it, is in itself unexpected.

Start going to church every Sunday.

Conner issues warning on unscrupulous lightning rod sales

A warning to be on guard against unscrupulous lightning rod salespersons was issued this week by Agriculture Commissioner Doyle Conner. The precaution follows the successful efforts of a High Springs couple to recover under the company's warranty the cost to repair damage sustained when their home was struck by lightning. Despite previous devices installed by the Independent Protection Company of Gothen, Ind., Conner says Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Campi had the lightning protection system installed for $322 in July, 1970, and it reportedly was still under $4,000 warranty when their last was struck by lightning last year.

The Campi turned to the Division of Consumer Services when they were unable to get help directly with the salesman or the Gothen headquarters of the Independent Protection Company regarding their request for compensation for the warranty.

William E. McMahon, assistant director of the Division of Consumer Services, said two letters to the Consumer Protection Company of Indiana, asking assistance in the case proved fruitless.

"If a person buys a product or service from the company headquartered in Florida, there is a much better chance to recover any loss by prosecuting for fraud," he said. "The company, from outside Florida, any legal action against the organization would be terribly time-consuming and expensive, and probably not worth the effort in the long run.

"A good rule for anyone to follow in any business dealing whether it be for painting, lightning rod installation, house siding or firm," he said.

"It may cost a little more, more, but you are fairly well assured of satisfaction and, if not satisfied, of some fair settlement through arbitration, discussion or legal action."
